AMENDMENTS OF THE CONSTITUTION.

In the House of Commons, on the 31st ult., the bill abrogating the property qualification of voters for Senators was passed—yeas 89, nays 24. It is a little remarkable that a proposition to submit to the people the question of "Convention" or "no Convention," was not passed unanimously. Now, as the Democrats started the question of "free suffrage," and they pretend to be great lovers of "the dear people," we expected that they would have gone as one man in favor of letting the people decide whether they desired to have the organic law of the land altered. As all power emanates from the people it is rather a bad sign when their servants are afraid to submit to them a decision of such an important question. There is a vast difference between preaching and practicing. As experience is the best teacher, we hope the people will learn a lesson that will not soon be forgotten—that it is not those who pretend to be their best friends that will prove so when the time of trial comes.

[Charlotte Journal.

OLD REEVE, THE ACTOR.—Reeve was in the habit of taking great liberties with his audience—he would interpolate dreadfully; nay, when he forgot his own part, he would cooly improvisatize his share of the dialogue, without the slightest reference to his brother performers. On one occasion he was acting the lover to Mrs. Fitzwilliams, who was a plump little actress, in a scene where she holds out her hand to Reeve, with this speech: "Can you refuse anything to your Pauline?" Reeve, looking at her plump hand, cried out: "Paw lean! paw fat, I call it!"—N. Y. Spirit of the Times.

RATIONAL.—A man residing in a New-England town, at some distance from a near relation, received a message one cold evening in November to hasten to his residence, as he was in a dying state. When he arrived, he was told that his reason had entirely left him. The sick man presently turned his head, saying in a faint voice:

"Who is that?"

He was informed that it was his relative who had been sent for.

"Oh!" said he, he must be cold. Make him a good warm toddy—yes, a strong, hot toddy.

"I guess he aint crazy," said the visitor, "he talks very rational."

SECESSION.

From an old number of the Southern Quartely Review, the papers re-copy the following extract from a letter by Mr. Jefferson to a distinguished public man of Virginia, written in 1789:

National Intelligencer.

"But if, on a temporary superiority of the one party, the other is to resort to a secession from the Union, no Federal Government can ever exist.—If, to rid ourselves of the present rule of Massachusetts and Connecticut, we break the Union, will the evil stop there? Suppose the New England States alone cut off, will our nature be changed? Are we not men still to the South of that, and with all the passions of men? Immediately we shall see a Pennsylvania and a Virginia party arise in the residuary Confederacy, and the public mind will be distracted with the same party spirit. What a game, too, will the one party have in their hands by eternally threatening the other, that unless they do so and so, they will join their Northern neighbors! If we reduce our Union to Virginia and North Carolina, immediately the conflict will be established between the representatives of these two States, and they will end by breaking into their simple units. Seeing, therefore, that an association of men who will not quarrel with one another is a thing which never yet existed, from the greatest confederacy of nations down to a town meeting or a vestry; seeing that we must have somebody to quarrel with, I had rather keep our New England associates for that purpose, than to see our bickerings transferred to others."

JOHN RANDOLPH was a firm and uncompromising friend of the Union of the States. In one of his speeches in Congress he once made use of the following language, which should be engraven on the portals of the Capitol:

"The very mention of a disunion of the States is a great public injury. It goes to unhinge the tone of the public mind. It makes men acquainted with the possibility of the thing, and, once admitted into their breasts, they will not contemplate it with that abhorrence in which it ought to be held by every true patriot."

PESIDENT FILLMORE'S message was published entire in the London papers of December 18th. A synopsis was sent on from Livepool by telegraph, and published in London on the 17th—as also a synopsis of the Postmaster General's report.

COMMUNICATION.

FOR THE REGISTER

TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The Industrial Association which lately met in Raleigh, did not think it expedient to memorialize your Honorable body, concerning matters which I propose to notice in this Communication—not because they are of too little importance to commend themselves to your notice, but because of its unwillingness to dash, with a suspicion of selfishness, the graciousness with which the public would receive the announcement of such an organization. You will allow me, therefore, respectfully to call your attention to some grievances, under which the manufacturing interest of the State at present labors.

I mention first the Militia Laws: To conduct the operations of a cotton or woolen mill, it is indispensable to have the services of overseers and other operatives, of such age as subjects them to military duty. It is equally necessary, that the personal service and supervision of these men shall be daily and unremittingly given, in their respective departments. The consequence is, that mill-owners must pay their fines, or the mills must stop, and all the operatives be thrown out of employment for a day. Now if a corresponding or proportionate public benefit were secured by these militia musters, we could acquiesce in this private annoyance and loss, with a good grace, but as our griefs in this regard are shared in common with the public, with only a difference in kind, we ask relief.

In the next place, I regard, as a grievance, the decision of the Supreme Court, by which our machinery is made real estate. No one has greater respect for the distinguished jurists who compose this Court, than myself. They confer character and honor upon the Bench and upon the State. But their decision in this case, depended, for its correctness, more upon a matter of fact, than a principle of law. It was based upon a wrong hypothesis, to wit, that the machinery was secured to the floors, &c. by bolts, and therefore, were fixtures and parts of the house. This is a material error, in fact, and takes the machinery of cotton and woolen factories out of the category of grist mills, which furnished anological reasons for this decision. But the premises being false, the conclusion must be false likewise. Are there not sufficient reasons to justify your Honorable body in giving relief in this particular?

Thirdly. The Revenue Law of 1848–'49 operates both injuriously and unequally upon incorporated manufacturing companies, and practically discriminates in favor of those that are not incorporated. We had hoped that when we were taxed upon our lands and mill power, and taxed upon the numerous and expensive buildings necessary to be erected, and taxed upon this new element of real estate, the tools we work with, that we had reached the "extremest verge," and were taxed enough! But if, unfortunately, we are incorporated, to these taxes on lands and power, and houses and machinery, is superadded a tax of 3 per cent. on the profits! If not incorporated, the manufacturer escapes with an unjust discrimination in his favor, for I presume he would not be taxed as a trader. This cumulation of taxes, this piling of Pelion upon Ossa, is rather too suggestive of the familiar illustration of the step mother on the one hand, and of the goose that laid golden eggs on the other, to be characteristic of the intelligence, foresight and patriotism of a North Carolina Legislature. I doubt not the law works differently from its original purpose. Is it asked whether I am justified by the extent of the manufacturing interest, in obtruding their grievances upon the attention of the Legislature? This question will be better answered by the Executive Committee of the Industrial Association. I will interpose a few thoughts and facts.

In an address to the people of North Carolina by a Committee appointed by the Internal Improvement Convention, which met in Raleigh in Nov. 1833, it was said: "We have nothing that deserve the name of manufactures. No processes for changing the values of the raw materials are in use among us, except those effected by manual labor, or by machinery of the simplest and commonest construction." This statement is but an item in the gloomy catalogue of the wants and deficiences presented in that address, as pervading every department of our political economy—the commercial, the manufacturing and the agricultural. Seventeen years have wrought a change in this picture, so far at least, as manufactures are concerned. We cannot speak of our Lowells or Manchesters—nor do we aspire to the aristocratic soubriquet of Lords of the spindle and the loom. But we may say that few communities have in the same time, and with the same means and under the same discouragements, done more than North Carolina has done in this department of Industry. In a period embraced in three fourths of the term which gives maturity and enfranchisement to the "human machine," have those other "machines of the simplest and commonest construction" grown up and expanded into more than thirty manufacturing establishments, employing a capital of a million and a half of dollars, giving employment to thousands of our industrious poor, pouring into the channel of circulation, hundreds of thousands of dollars annually, enlarging and diversifying the demands of a home market, and making a new department of industry in the State. All this and more has been effected by individual enterprize and without any of those legislative aids often so necessary to foster and sustain undertakings, diffusive and national in their effects, and even despite some ill considered clogs and embarrassments thrown around them in acts of incorporation, by which individual property is made responsible, &c. The interests of the manufacturer fraternize with all other interests and must flourish and prosper, or wither and decay with them. All are dependant upon the same conditions of industrial organization. Every political community, to be independent, must seek that independence in those elements which alone command it—the development of its own resources, the manufacture of its own materials, and the encouragement and protection of its own labor. I do not wish to be understood as desiring the enactment of any tariff laws, or non-intercourse laws, or laws taxing the manufactures of other States. Far from it. I hope to see our manufacturing prosperity resting upon a surer and more stable basis than can be furnished by such expedients. And one of the principal elements of this stability is a judicious system of Internal Improvement.—Another is a Mineralogical, Geological and Agricultural survey of the State. I will not trench upon the ground of the Committee appointed to memorialize you on this subject.

In conclusion, I beg to say that the time is auspicious for doing what may be properly and justly be done for establishing our industrial independence or a firm basis. There seems to be a consentaneous agreement among all parties, that N. Carolina, abounding in all the elements necessary and accessory to that one, should assume a position less dependent upon the rest of the world.—It has been a matter of reproach to us, too long, that we are laggers in the world's progress—that being amongst the richest in the gifts of Providence, we are the poorest in all that depends upon exertion and enterprize. Shall this always be so? Legislators, Patriots, North Carolinians, shall this condition never change? Shall the disparaging soubriquet of Rip Van Winkle, like the tunic of Nessus, hang around us forever?—Shall our supercilious Sister of the South be always allowed arrogantly to speak of Carolina as though the name was blessed and honoured by no other land than that so indisputably renowned for a transcendental chivalry and palmetto buttons? Have we not a climate as genial, a soil as fertile, an atmosphere as salubrious as those of our neighbors? Are not our people as intelligent, our arms as strong, and our hearts as true to our country, our united country, as those of the people of South Carolina?

——"What should be in that Cæsar?"

Why should that name be sounded more than yours? Shall these gibes and taunts be set to music, and the refrain be "N. Carolina is taking her accustommed and refreshing slumber, and seems content to go on and make her usual amount of tar and turpentine."

There is a tide in public opinion, which if taken at the flood, may lead to our redemption. Our fortunes are in our own hands, to mar or make them. The time and circumstances are auspicious. Let them not be longer neglected.

"Men at some times are masters of their fates:
The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars,
But in ourselves, that we are underlings."

Mr. Johnson of Caswell, offered an amendment proposing to tax the capital invested in Negro trading, &c., instead of the profits and dividends; which elicited considerable debate. Pending this amendment, the House took a recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

A message was received from the Senate transmitting sundry engrossed bills and resolutions a part of which were read the 1st time and passed, They will receive more particular notice on their 2nd reading.

Mr. Webb moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolutions in relation to the removal of the Cherokee Indians from this state were rejected; and this motion was laid on the table.

The House proceeded to the unfinished business of the morning, viz: the Revenue Bill.

The discussion on the amendment offered by Mr. Johnson was continued for some time.

Mr. Waugh moved to amend the amendment by inserting a tax of ½ of one per cent. on the capital invested instead of one-sixth; which was adopted. The question then recurring on the amendment Mr. Johnson, as amended, Mr. Flemming called for a division of the question, and the House refused to strike out.

Mr. Avery moved to amend by striking out steam vessels, which was rejected.

The House then took a recess.

[The following was the vote, on Friday morning last, on the passage, upon its third reading, of the "Free Suffrage" Bill; three-fifths being necessary to carry it. The vote was subsequently reconsidered, but we hardly thing that the Bill can ultimately prevail:

DAILY REGISTER.

DAILY ISSUE.

Tuesday Morning, Jan. 14th.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

Both Houses were busily engaged in the transaction of business on yesterday. A number of Bills were put upon their third reading, and finally disposed of.

The House of Commons held an evening sitting yesterday, and will continue to do so until the end of the session. Of course, it cannot be expected that we should give, in our morning's paper, the proceedings of the preceding evening later than a certain hour—say up to the afternoon recess.

It is pretty generally understood, that the Legislature will certainly adjourn on next Monday week, the 27th.

ERRATUM.

An unfortunate error occurred in the transfer of Mr. Erwin's Speech from the Daily to our Semi-Weekly and Weekly issue, on Friday—seven lines having been inserted out of place. In the paragraph commencing, "My idea of Government," &c., at the close of the 1st column, after the second line, take out the seven lines which follow and insert them in their proper place, after the 5th line of the paragraph, commencing midway the 2nd column, and beginning, "The argument in favor of the Federal basis," &c.—We regret the occurrence of this error; but, pressed as we are, mistakes are sometimes unavoidable.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION.

Our Charter Election for Mayor, Town Commissioners, &c., comes off on Monday next.

There is no opposition, we understand, to our present excellent Intendant. Our citizens seem agreed, by common consent, as it were, to claim his services for another year. This is a handsome tribute to his private and official worth.

☞ We have been seeking time, for several days past, to pay our respects to the recent letter of the Hon. A. RENCHER to Gen. SAUNDERS. We will endeavor to do so, in our next.

☞ Col. W. L. LONG has purchased the establishment of the Weldon Herald, and will publish the paper in the town of Halifax. We wish our friend, the former Editor, prosperity in his retirement, and tender Col. Long a cordial welcome into the fraternity. He will doubtless conduct an efficient and useful journal, and should be liberally sustained.

LITERARY NOTICES.

The Christmas Holydays at Rome; by Wm. Ingraham Kip.—Among the numberless variety of books constantly presenting themselves to our notice, none offer chapters of such interest, as the journals of travellers. Novels excite for a while, but leave the mind weary and languid. History pleases and instructs, but is rather too solid to be read after dinner. Philosophy requires too much wrinkling of the forehead and working of the brain, for general readers.—It suits the learned, not the literary person. But, after a long, hard-working day, it is most delightful to pick up one of these books of travels, while we sink far back into the cushions of a capacious arm chair, with a big blazing fire before us, in imagination to be wandering over the face of the earth with our kind traveller, whoever he may be. Shivering in Sweden or basking in Italian sunlight, we make long voyages without changing our easy recline, and are presented to Her Majesty or His Holiness in worsted slippers and dressing gown.

Such an evening do we spend, while reading "Christmas Holydays at Rome." The author, Wm. Ingraham Kip, is a man of cultivated and vivid imagination; his mind is filled with poetic and classic lore, and his very heart seems to mourn as he paints the melancholy picture of Rome, as it is, "the Niobe of Nations," and Rome in its days of glory, "Metropolis of the earth"—"Queen of Cities." His style is ve pleasing, often truly poetical; and his thoughts flow along without effort, occasionally casting forth some brilliant jeu d'esprit, which, like a ripple in the sunshine, makes the whole more beautiful.

One of the most interesting chapters in the book is the one in which he describes the Services in St. Peters, on Christmas morning. Thus he writes:

"After waiting for at least an hour, suddenly there came a burst of music from the lower end of the church. It was a loud chant, which softened by the distance, floated sweetly through the building. Every eye was strained towards the spot from which it proceeded, and there, raised high on the shoulders of men, clothed in violet colored robes, we beheld the Pope borne above the heads of the kneeling multitude in his crimson chair, the falling drapery from which half concealed those who carried him. The gemmed Tiara was on his head, and his robes sparkled with jewels. On each side of him were carried high, fan-like banners of ostrich feathers, such as we see in pictures of the processions of an Eastern Rajah. Before him marched a Guard of Honor, consisting of some sixty Roman Noblemen, who always form his escort on great Festivals.

"Around him was his brilliant Court—the Cardinals—the Bishops of the Greek, Armenian, and other Eastern Churches, in their most gorgeous array—the Heads of different Religious Brotherhoods, in ash-colored garments—Priests in purple and white, some bearing the Great Cross and lighted tapers, and some flinging in the air their golden censers—thus the procession came slowly on to the sound of Anthems—the most gorgeous show which probably ever entered a Christian Church."

Another chapter very striking, is upon the Palaces of Rome. An old tradition lingers around every crumbling wall, and the brilliant imagination of our author consecrates every grove and fountain to the mighty spirits of the past.

There is one spot in Rome, which must, to every stranger, be of sad interest—the Protestant Burial Ground. Indeed, all that can be told of Rome is full of sadness. Mr. Kipp says, "in the very atmosphere there is something which induces pensiveness—one is insensibly led to musing." How could one but be still and think, when every blade of grass tells of decay, and the very language is a mournful melody.—How sad the changes in Rome! Even the Peasant of the Campagna, degraded as he seems to be, realizes the fall of this Mistress of the World, and as he labors among her mouldering ruins, you may hear his melancholy song—

"Roma! Roma! Roma!
Non e piu come era prima."

SALE OF A RICE PLANTATION.—On the 1st inst. the Rice Plantation on the Cape Fear River, a short distance above Wilmington, belonging to the estate of the late William B. Meares, was sold at auction in Charleston, for $25,000. Mr. Thomas D. Meares was the purchaser. The sale was on a credit of one, two, three, and four years. The plantation contains 580 acres; 380 acres is tide swamp, nearly the whole of which is under cultivation.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, January 6, 1851.

There was a large audience in the Senate to day, to hear Mr. Mangum defend the late President Taylor's conduct in removing Gen. Joseph Lane from the office of Governor of Oregon.—Many Army officers were present on the Senate floor and in the galleries. Among them I observed Gens. Riley, Churchill and Henderson, and Colonel Taylor, and brother of the late General Taylor.

Mr. Mangum was able and eloquent. His argument was well fortified: his facts were stated clearly and distinctly, and his deductions were pointed, legitimate and conclusive.

He showed that Gen. Lane, while Gen. Taylor was a candidate, before the American people, for President, had impeached the Old Hero's integrity and veracity, in the matter of the official report of the Commander-in-Chief of the battle of Buena Vista, touching the conduct of the Indiana troops, under Gen. Lane's immediate command on that occasion.

He showed that all Gen. Taylor's report referred to was strictly true, and borne out by the reports of other officers who acted leading and prominent parts in the great Buena Vista drama.

He showed how much Gen. Lane had gone out of his way to attack and assail Gen. Taylor's honesty and veracity.

He then showed that Gen. Taylor was in duty bound, as a man of honor, with a proper self-respect, to show to the world, by the removal of Gen. Lane, that he lent no sanction to the charges which that officer had made against his honor and his veracity.

I know not when I have listened with more pleasure to a speech from Mr. Mangum, who always speaks well. He was truly happy, as well as eloquent, to-day, and produced a happy effect upon his auditors.

At the close of his speech, he alluded to the mutations of parties, which are now going on to some extent, and expressed his disapprobation of them.

Many of the Senators went up to Mr. Mangum, after he had made his speech, and cordially congratulated him upon his brilliant and successful effort.

POTOMAC.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

The Journal of Commerce of Tuesday evening says:

"There is more activity in consequence of the demand for duties at the Custom House, but as the money thus paid must go again into the street, and as our surplus capital has nearly all been unlocked by recent movements in the market, there will be no stringency felt and probably no improvement in rates. The arrival of the Crescent City with a large amount of gold, seems to have had no exhilarating effect upon the Stock market this morning, which showed symptoms of reaction in many of the Fancies.

"Exchange closed steady with a moderate business; Bills on London, 1,10¼ a 1,10½; Paris, 5,12½ a 5,10; other Continental at our last quotations."

☞ The Petersburg News publishes a letter, of January 4th, from a Cadet at Lexington, who refers to an apprehended rebellion of the slaves. The impression was based upon a letter found, developing the plot. The military at the Institute were ordered to be in readiness for any emergency. We trust that the report was ill-founded. At all events, no outbreak can now be expected.

BLAKE'S

Patent Fire Proof Paint.

☞ This most singular substance, in a few months after applied, turns to Slate or Stone, forming a complete coat of Mail, protecting whatever is covered from the action of Fire and Weather. It has now been tested more than six years and shows that TIME and the ELEMENTS only seem to indurate or harden the substance; it seems to be a perfect desideratum for all outside painting that has for centuries been sought in vain. For all descriptions of buildings, either Brick, Wood, or roofs of Wood or Metal, there is nothing equal to it. So highly are its Fire proof qualities appreciated in Akron, Ohio, where it is best known, that all the Insurance Companies have published that they will Insure Buildings well covered with it at a much lower premium than those covered with Tin or Zinc, as it has been tried in several fires there and stood much longer than either. For Rail Road Depots Bridges, Steam boat and Car decks, for all kinds of Iron, it forms a coating nearly as hard as the Iron itself and never cleaves off.
